

Run of international contracts continues

T-Systems wins more international deals

Frankfurt am Main, March 8, 2007. – T-Systems continues to expand its business outside of Germany. By 2010, the ICT provider intends to double its share of international revenue to one-third and assume a leadership role in key western European markets. T-Systems has made headway by winning six new contracts. "Over the past few years we have expanded our presence outside of Germany and improved the awareness of T-Systems in international markets – this strategy is now paying off," remarked Axel Knobe, responsible for business with multinational corporations and public institutions. The total value of the new contracts exceeds 70 million euros.

The city council of Palma de Mallorca has awarded T-Systems an order to set up a new IT infrastructure. Palma's officials want to become the model for public service by handling 80 percent of all routine services through the new online portal. The city invested more than 50 million euros in the project, designed to save trips to city hall to take care of routine tasks. For the citizens of Palma, this means more services in better quality at no additional cost. Palma recently received the ISO 9001:2000 Quality Certification for improving its public administration systems.

The Government of Catalonia has awarded T-Systems a contract for over 10 million euros to bring the Internet into over 2000 Catalan schools. T-Systems will implement broadband access for the schools through fixed and wireless connections. The order stems from an initiative by the Catalan Government to nurture an information society in this autonomous region of Spain. T-Systems is already a principal ICT provider the Government of Catalonia. Since 2005, the ICT provider is responsible for the operation and management of IT services.

T-Systems has also sealed an ICT contract with the Swiss health insurer KPT for the introduction of an archiving and workflow solution. The company can now optimize and automate the distribution, processing and archiving of online insurance policies and other documents. The insurer saves time by eliminating paper documents and correspondence. KPT is able to pass on this benefit to its customers, who are rewarded with a five percent reduction in premiums when they choose online processing for their additional insurance policies.
